ONION PATTERN – THE ORIGINAL

277 YEARS OF DINING CULTURE

Certain things are simply unique: for example, MEISSEN®'s onion pattern, the most successful blue décor in the history of porcelain.

As early as the eighteenth century, the specialists at MEISSEN® sought a blue that would both accentuate the porcelain's whiteness and harmonize with it. Saxony's Elector August the Strong offered a princely reward of 1,000 thalers to its discoverer. Lengthy experimentation led to the discovery that substances which combine the elements of cobalt and oxygen are extremely resistant to heat. In 1739, this realization led to the birth of the world-famous onion-pattern décor on Meissen's porcelain. An East Asian model inspired the motif of pomegranate, peach, bamboo, lotus blossoms and chrysanthemum.

Then as now, the underglaze painter manually applies the colours with fine brushstrokes to the fired and porous substrate. The colour quickly and deeply penetrates into the still absorbent material, where it initially appears as an inexpressive and dull grey.

Only after glazing and a second firing (known as Garbrennen in German) at a temperature of 1,450° does it acquire its magically radiant, cobalt-blue hue. Thanks to this second firing, a sturdy overglaze protects the décor and makes it dishwasher-safe. The "Crossed Swords" have been a salient feature of the décor since 1888. Positioned at the foot of the bamboo stalk, these swords guarantee that the "onion pattern" truly comes from MEISSEN®, Europe's first porcelain manufactory.
